Special Offers of Tulip Collections

THE bulb collections that we have supplied to our customers for many years have given the greatest satisfaction, judging from the increased number of orders and re-orders each successive season. Our TULIP BULB COLLECTIONS have become especially famous for the fine variety of flowers they produce. We again offer a very choice selection of the very finest bulbs.

To those who have not had the experience and pleasure derived from growing these wonderful flowers, we can say that little effort is required to have and enjoy a bright spot in the garden, long before other garden flowers bloom. In the border against the new foliage of shrubbery they make a most pleasing picture.

These collections are offered at much less than the price of the listed varieties. We are enabled to make these offers for the reason that we can equalize our stocks to better advantage, and often include the choice high priced varieties that do not sell as readily. No undesirable kinds are used as we do not stock or have any inferior varieties.

Each collection is made up of varieties that will give the greatest range of color and display and, we feel confident, will please the most exacting.

We want to emphasize the facts that only TOP SIZE bulbs are used, and also that the collections are real bargains.

DARWIN TULIP COLLECTIONS

We offer these first because we have found that they are the most popular with our customers. While the cost of bulbs imported from Holland has gone up because of the great difference in value of the U. S. dollar and the Dutch money, we are able to keep prices at a minimum because of very large purchases.

DARWIN TULIPS

THE DARWINS are without question the most popular as well as the best known of the several different classes of tulips. Their gorgeous colors, their size, and the ease with which they may be successfully grown is the reason for their unsurpassed popularity.

Among the many colors and shades the reds and pinks predominate but soft blues, violets and purples with shadings into maroons and almost black may be found among them. In recent years pure white and yellows have been developed and are now available at a reasonable price. While there is quite a variation from the colors mentioned in Darwins, one must look among the Breeders for the golds and bronzes, and the Cottage tulips will supply the intense orange and scarlet.

The list of Darwins offered on this page covers the whole range of colors and the most superior kinds in their respective shades. The bulbs we offer are all "TOP SIZE" the kind that produce maximum results. We handle only the very best and largest size bulbs. We do not, and will not handle the inferior and cull grades that are so often offered by concerns who are ignorant of "quality," which is most essential for satisfactory results from bulbs.

We append a figure following the name that indicates the relative time each kind flowers when given the same exposure and growing conditions. No. 1 indicates earliest, No. 2 second early, No. 3 midseason to late and No. 4 the latest flowering kinds.

The figure following the variety name indicates the relative time of blooming.

BREEDER TULIPS

THEY are so called because they comprise the old original or mother tulips that were favorites in Holland centuries ago, and from which many of the improved newer types and classes have been bred and developed.

The habit of growth is strong and robust. Their size and great lasting qualities make them unusually well suited for the garden.

A remarkable variation of rich color tones will be found among the Breeders, many so termed pastel shades will be found among them, but the predominating color tones are rich bronze, buff, golden yellow and purples, many of these shades being beautifully blended in the same flower. Many of these fine large flowers are overlaid with a silvery sheen or bloom, such as is seen on fruits. Many of them are sweet scented.

Their flowering period is approximately the same time as the Darwins, although very few of them will flower as early as the first Darwins. Beautiful color schemes can be made up with Breeders and the Darwins, they are approximately of the same height and with the additional colors in this class there is no desired color lacking to create a beautiful picture in the garden.

COTTAGE AND HYBRID COTTAGE TULIPS

THE COTTAGE TULIPS, or May Flowering Tulips as they are often termed, comprise a greater variation in form and a larger range of colors than any other type. They vary greatly in form, some with long slender flowers, others oval and many with pointed petals that reflex gracefully resembling brilliantly colored lilies. They are very hardy and robust, and have long, slender but very stiff stems.

They surpass other types in their richness and variation in color. Many artistic combinations of colors and delicate hues comprising amber and rose, salmon, pink shades, yellow, orange and scarlets may be found among them.

The average flowering season of Cottage Tulips is a little later than that of the Darwins and Breeders, and because of their hardiness they are best suited of all tulips for permanent planting in the garden or border. Their lasting qualities are exceptional both in the garden or when cut.

Advance—Dazzling vermilion-scarlet, the most brilliant hybrid tulip produced to date. Giant blazing red flowers on strong stems.

Height 22 in. Doz. $2.50; 100 $22.00

IDEAL TULIPS

SINCE introducing IDEAL TULIPS a few years ago they have gained greater popularity each succeeding year as their superiority to older varieties has become better known. This superiority is especially noticeable in their greater ruggedness and lasting qualities in which they surpass all other kinds.

This is accounted for by the introduction of new blood through cross breeding with the most robust of a wild species of tulip, which has resulted in a greatly improved strain.

Through careful selection a greater range of new and distinct colors has been developed, some of which are unique, and among which will be found many beautiful lavender, lilac and purple shades that are outstanding, also the many fine whites that are indispensable for contrast effects in group plantings. In all the different varieties Ideals will be found superior in size and form, as well as depth of color when compared with older kinds.

We are able to offer a larger list of Ideals this year, and are also enabled to reduce prices materially on many of them because of favorable arrangements with the originator in Holland.

PARROT OR DRAGON TULIPS

THESE large curious flowers are quite unique. Their form is most artistic, as well as fantastic. They are beautifully fringed and lacinated, and attract the eye to wherever the flower may be in the garden or border.

The new varieties are particularly desirable because of their strong, erect habit of growth. The old standard varieties are more desirable for planting on the edges of low branched evergreens as they grow in a sprawling and twisting manner, the large flowers are inclined to lie flat on the ground if not supported.

BIZARD AND BI-BLOOM OR OLD DUTCH TULIPS

These originate from the early attempt of crossing the original Breeder tulips and are a very old race. They are the result of tulip crossing and breeding in Holland and France, dating back to the early days of the sixteenth century. The Bizards are striped and feathered brown on yellow ground, the Bi-blooms are oddly shaped and feathered rose and carmine or violet on white ground. Their blooming season corresponds with that of the Darwin, but their height is less, averaging about 20 inches. Planting them in clusters in the border away from other tulips gives the best effect.

Lily Flowering tulips are especially fine for cut flower purposes as they may be arranged beautifully in a bowl or vase.

MENDEL TULIPS

Mendel Tulips are the result of crossing Duc Van Tholl (the earliest flowering tulips) with Darwins, the object being to produce flowers the size of Darwins and also to get an earlier large flowering type. While this has been in process for some years, and highly successful, it is not until quite recently that the real fine kinds resulting from this crossing, have been available in any quantity.

We consider them particularly desirable for indoor culture and forcing, but are adapted for outdoor planting, too. They come into bloom nearly as soon as the earliest flowering kinds and from ten days to two weeks before the Darwins. They have strong, sturdy stems, but are not as tall as the Darwins or Ideals. The size of the flowers however compares favorably.

There are some really desirable varieties among them and we have selected a short list from many that we have tried out, and which we can recommend.

BOTANICAL AND SPECIES TULIPS

THESE most interesting tulips have become very popular with the advent of the rock garden for which they are particularly adapted, as their native habitat is, with one or two exceptions, the rocky slopes bordering the Mediterranean Sea, where the bulbs are collected from their wild state.

These Tulips comprise extremes and variations in size, shape and type of growth as well as habit. They are most fascinating planted in small clusters or singly in the crevices or among other plants in the rock garden.

Aside from the bright flowers which come long before most perennials, the foliage of these tulips is pretty, odd and interesting. Plant them where they are fully exposed to the sun and where the least amount of moisture will reach them during the summer, as this is their resting period.

Our supply comes from the most reliable and largest collector in Holland; the bulbs we offer are the best obtainable.

GRULLEMANI TULIPS

These magnificent new tulips have been the object of the greatest attention wherever shown, both in Europe and in this country. They are distinct in form from any other class. The large oblong flower opens to enormous size, and the coloration is quite unique, the inside base or center has an unusually large disc of a color that reminds one of giant poppies.

Grullemanni Tulips are hybrids from the crossing of Darwins and species tulip Kaufmanniana. They retain some of the characteristics of both, but are greatly different in form.

Their habit of growth is very robust and under the same condition will outlast any other tulips, either in the garden or when grown indoors.

TRIUMPH TULIPS

Triumphs are another new class of tulips, that are especially distinguished for their very robust habit of growth, large flowers and also many new and varied colors. While most kinds are of medium height, averaging about 20 inches high, their tremendously strong, thick stems make them quite distinct from other kinds.

They are the result of crossing Single Early tulips with Darwins, and their blooming season is somewhat earlier than Breeders and Darwins.

Triumph Tulips are excellent for border planting, and planted in the foreground with taller growing kinds in the background, they not only add a longer period of bloom, but create a most pleasing effect.

SUPERB HYACINTHS

MORE OF THESE interesting and colorful flowers should be grown. A great deal of pleasure may be had in watching the development of the large bright, sweetly scented spikes of flowers.

Growing them successfully is a simple matter. No bulb flower is easier to grow indoors, the slight effort required to plant and care for them will bring big dividends in pleasure.

In the garden they come into bloom before the tulips. Planted in the border, either in clusters or spotted here and there, they greet us with their fragrance, and to say, spring is here.

INDOOR CULTURE

For planting in soil use any kind of a pot that has drainage. Ordinary clay pots are preferable and ordinary soil with a little sand mixed into it makes it more porous. Place a broken piece of crock over the hole in the bottom so as to insure free drainage. Fill in enough soil so that when placing the bulb the top will be about an inch below the level of the top of the pot, fill in soil and cover bulb firmly, leaving plenty of space below rim for watering. Use 4 to 5 inch pots for the larger bulbs when planting them singly. A number of small bulbs planted in wider shallow pots is very satisfactory. After potting, water thoroughly and place in a cool, dark place and leave until a number of roots show on outside of soil when it is tipped out of pot. When several roots show through, it is then safe to bring them into the light where they are to grow.

Hyacinths may also be grown in glasses or bowls of water. The bulb should be placed so that the bottom just touches the water, and enough water added occasionally to keep it at the proper level. Hyacinths grown in water should also be kept cool and dark until plenty of roots have developed.

When bringing them into the light where they are to grow, better results will be obtained by growing them cool. A window sill or sunroom is best.

OUTDOOR CULTURE

Plant Hyacinths so that top of bulb is about 5 inches under the surface, water thoroughly, and cover with leaves or coarse straw before severe cold weather sets in. Covering for Hyacinths should be quite heavy. Remove covering as early as snow and ice will permit, but if already sprouted it is well to replace a little of the covering to keep the direct rays of the sun away, this to prevent harm from the sudden changes in weather.

The Hyacinths here offered are the very choicest that Holland produces. The supply comes to us from the most noted grower of these bulbs. The bulbs are fully up to the size specified, or larger, they have been thoroughly ripened and cured, to insure the best results.

THE PLEASURE of being greeted by these bright, cheerful flowers the very first thing in the spring is indeed great. They come quickly into bloom, often before the snow and ice have disappeared. Crocus may be planted anywhere, about three inches deep, but will do best in sunny and partially sheltered situation.

LILIES

Those listed here may be safely planted in the fall. They require early transplanting in order to make a strong root growth before cold weather comes.

Planting—Outdoors. Lilies do better when partially protected and shaded, but allowing the flower stock to reach the sunlight.

Lily bulbs should all be planted in well drained soil; if the soil is heavy it will be best to dig deeper and fill in with sandy or porous soil, so that water will drain away freely. Too much water and moisture is apt to rot the bulb. Most lilies should be planted at a depth of five to seven inches to top of bulb below

LILIUM CADIDUM "THE MADONNA LILY"

These wonderfully lovely lilies, with their delightfully fragrant pure white flowers are invaluable for the garden. Their blooming season is approximately the same as Delphiniums, and what a pretty picture they make blooming together. It is beautiful.

Plant in groups of several bulbs, about four inches below the surface to top of bulb, in soil that is well drained. Planting early is quite necessary in order that they make considerable root growth before cold weather comes. A light covering to keep off early freezing is desirable.

We offer this year, both northern France grown bulbs, and American grown. We consider them equally hardy and desirable. Customers desiring choice of either may state their preference.

- First size bulbs. Each 20c; Doz. $1.90; 100 $15.00

Colchicum bulbs will bloom anywhere without soil or moisture. If laid on a shelf, table or window sill where light reaches them they will burst into bloom in a few days. After through blooming, the bulbs should be planted outdoors as they are quite hardy.

The growth of these curious plants stops during July when the leaves die down, and the fine large flowers appear in September, continuing to bloom long after other flowers have been cut down by frost.

We offer the largest bulbs of the three best kinds.

Indoor Culture of Lilies—In potting them be sure to provide enough drainage so that at no time will the plant get water logged. NARCISSI — DAFFODILS

NARCISSI are composed of a large and varied family of bulbous plants. Confusion often arises about the proper names when the different types are referred to. NARCISSI is the family name for all the varied forms, and is the name given the original wild species, from which have been developed the many types that we know as Daffodils, Jonquils, Poets, Poetaz, Bi-Colors and similar designations in common use.

By common usage the large trumpet varieties are generally referred to as Daffodils, the short cupped kinds are usually termed Jonquils and the white and cluster flowered sorts as just Narcissi, without further distinction.

There is a big difference in the various types, not alone in the form of flower, but in their structure and hardness as well. There is the Polyantha type to which the Paper White, Soliel d'Or and Chinese Narcissi belong, that come to us from warm climates. These are never hardy enough for planting outdoors in our northern latitude. The Trumpet and short cupped varieties are nearly all hardy, and will thrive and multiply under reasonable conditions.

CULTURE OF NARCISSI

Narcissi prefer a partially sheltered location, where best results will be obtained. They will, however, thrive in most any reasonable situation, continuing to increase from year to year.

Plant the larger bulbs so that the tops are about six inches under the surface, smaller bulbs slightly less. BUT it is essential for best results TO PLANT THEM EARLY. Narcissi need a longer period for the development of roots in the fall than other kinds of bulbs. Late plantings are often disappointing.

Cover rather heavily with straw or leaves before severe freezing weather sets in. The covering should be removed as early as snow and ice will permit.

Indoor culture of Narcissi varies with the variety, some may be grown in receptacles containing water and pebbles, but all kinds may be grown in pots and treated in the same manner as Hyacinths.

NOTE—The bulbs we offer are without exception TOP SIZE “MOTHER BULBS,” the largest bulbs procurable, and will produce several flowers each.
